ARTICLE SUMMARY (2024-08-13)

Alhurra's correspondent in Tel Aviv reported that about 1,200 Jews entered the courtyards of the Al-Aqsa Mosque on Tuesday, on the occasion of the so-called "Day of the Destruction of the Temple".

According to the Islamic Endowments Department in Al-Aqsa Mosque, 1,200 Jews entered the courtyards of the Al-Aqsa Mosque through 12 groups, and the correspondent indicated that the area around the mosque "is witnessing strict measures".

Alhurra's correspondent revealed that the Minister of National Security, Itamar Ben-Gvir, and his colleague, the Minister of the Negev and Galilee, Yitzhak Wasserlauf, both of whom are from the "Jewish Greatness" party, stormed the Al-Aqsa Mosque.

In turn, the Palestinian News Agency "Wafa" explained that hundreds stormed the courtyards of the Al-Aqsa Mosque on Tuesday morning, under the protection of the Israeli occupation police. pic.twitter.com/BUzGGB3RpM — Shila Freidlin (@shilofreid) August 13, 2024 The Endowments added that the Israeli forces "obstructed the entry of worshipers into the courtyards of Al-Aqsa Mosque and deployed large forces at its gates in order to facilitate the storming operations."

To discuss efforts to enhance stability in the region.. A call between Blinken and the Iraqi Prime Minister

ARTICLE KEYWORDS: Israel, Israeli, Gaza, (<https://alhurra.com>)

ARTICLE SUMMARY (2024-08-13)

US Secretary of State, Anthony Blinken, in a conversation with Iraqi Prime Minister, Muhammad Shiaa Al-Sudani, discussed the efforts made to enhance regional stability, in light of the worsening tensions in the region. Iran threatened Israel to respond after the killing of the head of Hamas's political bureau in Tehran, and its ally, Hezbollah, vowed to respond to the killing of the prominent military commander, Fouad Shukr, in an Israeli raid on the southern suburbs of Beirut at the end of last July.

Israel did not confirm its involvement in Haniyeh's killing, while it confirmed that Shukr was killed in a military operation. Deputy Spokesman for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Vedant Patel, said: "Secretary of State, Anthony Blinken, spoke today (Monday) with the Iraqi Prime Minister, Muhammad Shiaa Al-Sudani, and the two speakers discussed the ongoing diplomatic efforts to enhance stability in the region and the importance of avoiding escalation," according to a statement published by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The US State Department via its website.

Blinken's visit comes at a time when American efforts are intensifying to prevent the conflict in Gaza from turning into a broader war in the Middle East after the assassination of Haniyeh and Shukr.

A few days ago, a report by the British newspaper "The Telegraph" spoke about a "battle" that Pezeshkian is waging with the Revolutionary Guards to prevent the outbreak of a comprehensive war with Israel, against the backdrop of the assassination of the head of the political bureau of the Palestinian Hamas movement, Ismail Haniyeh, while he was in Tehran.

He added: "President Pezeshkian presented names of ministers that were different from what was agreed upon with his former assistant, and this is his natural right as president of the republic.

He added to the "Al-Hurra" website that "the Revolutionary Guards support Pezeshkian, contrary to the accusations we hear abroad that it is obstructing the course of events or pressuring Pezeshkian.

He says that "the ministerial formation included only 3 people in ministerial positions from the list submitted by the Steering Council committees to the president, which included approximately 1,000 names."

He added: "The one who controls power in Iran is the Supreme Leader and after him the hardline institutions, headed by the Iranian Revolutionary Guards; therefore, what happened cannot be considered a conflict between wings within the Iranian regime.
